

STUDY ABROAD AT VICTORIA

Art History, Classics + Religious Studies

The School of Art History, Classics and Religious Studies brings together three programmes, each with a proud history and a reputation of high academic standards.

Religious Studies, established in 1970, is the largest such programme in New Zealand, and the second largest in Australasia. Religious Studies staff form an enthusiastic team of creative specialists, whose work places emphasis on the contemporary relevance of religion, and the interface between religion and politics, society and culture.

Art History offers courses in Western art from the Medieval period to the present, including focused study of European, American, New Zealand and Pacific art. Teaching and research are augmented by two of the University's major assets, the Adam Art Gallery and the VUW Art Collection.

The Classics programme at Victoria has a small library available to all its students and a museum collection of Greek and Roman pottery, glassware, sculpture and coins.

In 2008, Victoria was ranked in the THES QS World Top 100 universities for its teaching of humanities and social sciences.
